What MITCHELL Says

I want the people who read this paper to know that I sure have the best eating candy in Paris.

The chocolates I sell you for 40 cents per pound cannot be any better.

If you pay 60 or 80 cents you are paying for the fancy packing, of course I have candy we sell for 60 cents per pound and it is strictly fancy and fine, but I want to have every lover of good candy to try my 40 cent creams, always strictly fresh.

Don't forget to send me your orders for the only genuine Blue Lick Water. I am the wholesale agent for the Springs Co. and can furnish it fresh at all times.

Yours truly,

C. B. MITCHELL.

THE attention of virtuous Kentucky Republicans who rolled their eyes in holy horror at the frauds practiced in the Democratic Appellate District Convention recently held at Lexington is respectfully directed to recent events in the Eleventh Congressional District, where a primary election was held to nominate a Republican candidate for Congress. According to Republican authority ballot boxes were burned and stolen and the votes of precincts were changed openly and wantonly.

Attention, Ladies.

It is a fact and conceded by good authorities that the hair should be shampooed and the scalp massaged at least every two weeks to keep it in good shape. The hair will be made healthy and will stop falling out if the scalp is properly massaged twice a month. I am a graduate at the business. I also do chiropodist work. Leave orders at Varden's.

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Aug. 18.—Henry G. Davis Wednesday was formally notified of and formally accepted his nomination by the democratic party for vice president of the United States. The ceremony took place in the open air in the grounds of Green Brier White Sulphur Springs hotel and were marked by simplicity in every detail. Mr. Davis was escorted to the flag draped platform at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon by Representative John Sharp Williams, of Mississippi, who delivered the notification address. An invocation by Rt. Rev. Dr. W. L. Gravatt, of the Episcopal diocese of West Virginia, preceded Mr. Williams, who occupied an hour in speaking. It took Mr. Davis ten minutes to read his formal acceptance, but he prefaced this with a heart to heart talk of like duration to the several thousand friends and neighbors who were gathered under the trees as his audience. Senator Daniel, of Virginia, was forced to acknowledge a demand for a speech but declined happily and at 3:25 o'clock the ceremony ended.

Earlier in the day a formal letter of notification was handed Mr. Davis in the parlor of the hotel in the presence of the assembled notification committee. It was a simple statement of the action of the St. Louis convention with reference to his nomination. He took the letter without reading it and thanked the committee, saying he would respond later in the day and hoped for a victorious response in November.

A reception and cotillion in honor of the nominee was held in the hotel in the evening.

The day was a perfect one. The sun shone throughout and the pure air of the mountains stirred gently into cooling breezes. The scene of the ceremonies was ideally picturesque. Two huge oaks mingled their branches directly over the platform of the speakers. Four others in a semi-circle in front furnished shade for the spectators, while the greensward of a lawn a hundred years old tempted the listeners to sit. The upward slope of the lawn on all sides and the erection of a sounding board back of the stand made speech easy and the acoustics good. As a background for the whole were the surrounding Alleghenies forested in green.

Mr. Davis was the center of interest throughout the day. When it came his time to respond to the notification address he was kept standing some minutes while the audience expressed its enthusiasm. This affected Mr. Davis.

To the strains of "Dixie" and a medley of patriotic airs, the assemblage dispersed; not, however, until many of its members had mounted the platform and extended personal congratulations to the candidate. The invited guests, including those in Mr. Davis' private party, who occupied a roped off reservation on the left, were the first to shake the senator's hand. Mr. Davis will remain at White Sulphur until Friday, when he will return to his home at Elkins. His plans for the campaign have not been fully matured.

NEGRO SHOT TO DEATH.

He Had Committed Two Robberies at Thomaston, Ala.

Mobile, Ala., Aug. 18.—Rufus Lesseur, a Negro, was shot to death outside the calaboose of Thomaston, Marengo county. He had been loafing around the place for several days and had committed two robberies. The second time he entered the home of Mrs. J. P. Hollis she was awakened and the Negro was frightened away. He dropped his hat, which led to his arrest. Gov. Cunningham has ordered an investigation of the lynching.

HYDROPHOBIA.

The Efficiency of Vaccination As a Preventative Shown.

Washington, Aug. 18.—Consul general Guenther, at Frankfurt, Germany, has supplied the state department of officials statistics touching the efficacy of vaccination as a preventative of hydrophobia. The substance of these is that only one and a half per cent. bitten by mad animals and vaccinated have died. The consul general says that the figures again show that Russia is the breeding place of hydrophobia.

MET ON THE CROSSING.

Four Persons Killed, One Fatally and 23 Seriously Injured.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—Four people were killed, another fatally hurt, and 23 severely injured in a collision late Wednesday afternoon between an express train on the Chicago Great Western railroad and a train of three trolley cars bound for the Hawthorne race track.

The accident occurred at the crossing of 48th avenue, and the Chicago Great Western tracks. The train was coming into the city and, according to some witnesses of the accident, was running at a high rate of speed. Others and the train crew declare that it was going over 20 miles an hour. The trolley train, which was made up of a motor car and two trailers, approached the crossing at a rapid rate just as the train came around a sharp curve to the west of the crossing. Motorman Ryan put on the brakes with all his strength in the effort to stop his car, but the brakes refused to work and with undiminished speed the motor car ran upon the tracks at the time the locomotive came up. The car struck the train between the engine and tender. The motor car was torn to splinters, the car immediately behind it was knocked over, smashed nearly to pieces and dragged along the track for 100 feet. The third car was not dragged from the tracks, and but for the fact that the couplings between it and the second trailer broke the list of injured would probably be much greater, as all of the cars were filled with passengers. Motorman Ryan remained at his post to the last, and was fatally hurt, his skull being fractured.

All of the persons who were killed occupied the seats in the front of the first car on the west side. One woman, who is as yet unidentified at the morgue, had just taken a seat offered her by William Tennis, of 1013 North Albany avenue, when the crash came. She was rolled under the motor car and horribly mangled. Tennis, after giving up his seat, went to the rear of the car, and escaped with slight injuries.

All the members of the Chicago Great Western train crew and the conductors of the trolley cars were placed under arrest pending the inquiry of the coroner, which will be made.

PLUNGED INTO THE RIVER.

An Automobile Went Through a Draw Bridge at Chicago.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—An automobile of the touring car type, carrying four persons, plunged into the river at Rush street Wednesday night when the bridge was open. In its descent the automobile turned over, throwing the occupants into the water, but clear of the machine. All were rescued within a few minutes by the crew of a tug and boatmen on the banks. The chauffeur attributes the accident to the refusal of the brakes of the machine to check its speed when he applied them. He said he saw the open draw and heard the warning cries of the people on the walk, but the machine would not respond to the brake, and before he knew it he was in the river.

On behalf of the Christian Endeavorers of Connecticut, H. E. Spooner forwarded to the navy department a number of petitions requesting that wine be not used in its stead "Pure crystal spring water from the Connecticut hills against which for nearly 300 years no indictment had been found and which has played a vital part in building the sons of Connecticut into the sinews of the nation."

PARIS EVENING GOWNS

TWO BECOMING AND USEFUL EVENING OR CARRIAGE WRAPS.

PARIS.—There can be no doubt whatever that dress over here is quite beautiful, and at the best receptions where well-known American women and English grandes dames congregate, one notices lovely toilettes and superb figures. The magnificent in dress seems to suit the ideally tall, slight American figure, and gives it an exceptionally distinguished appearance.

Evening reception gowns have been particularly gorgeous. There has been a great fancy for finest black Chantilly lace over softest white satin and taffeta. This may sound somewhat inclined to dowdiness, but it is not so when well carried out.

Then the embroideries are really beautiful, while the mode of putting real stones on the front of the corset bodice in stomacher style has a most regal effect.

Let me describe a toilet in black and white for your benefit. It was made of the lightest make of Chantilly lace over satin messaline, looped up on the hips in "Dolly Varden" style, and decorated with great choux of black velvet and pailletted centers. Two more choux were worn, one in the hair and one on the shoulder. Over the draped bodice of black Chantilly fell a wonderful bertha of beautiful point d'Alencon, and on this were applied some motifs of the black Chantilly.

These studies in black and white, devoid of colors, have a distinction all their own. But sometimes a successful note of color is struck in a black and white toilette by a cluster of dark red damask roses. A vivid touch of vieux-rose, too, introduced by means of carnations, is effective, and these flowers, I hear, are the cult in London as well as over here. When brought to perfection they are truly beautiful.

Strong colors are still worn in the evening, but the craze for dark blue seems to be fading. Mulberry color is worn a good deal; a very bright shade is chosen as a rule, and it is generally relieved with lace.

The evening dress of painted chiffon, with little medallions of lace let in, is still in vogue. It is made in fluffy, ethereal style, held in place by a well-shaped Marie Antoinette corsage. By the way, the newest court bodices fasten up behind.

A good deal of lavender silk, satin and peau de sole is worn for smart afternoon and evening wear, and I predict that many toilettes composed of these fabrics in this color will be seen on the continent very shortly, made up with white embroidered fichus or some old lace.

Pale green is holding its own for evening wear, particularly in tender tones of eau de nil. Charming also is taffeta changeant in blue and green mixtures. There seems to be but little change in evening dresses at the present moment, judging from the early autumn frocks which the leading couturiers are making for les belles Americaines and travelers passing through Paris.

The tulle and chiffon hat is conspicuous by its absence, and the pig picture hats for wearing at restaurants are mostly of lightest Panama chip and crinoline. The eighteenth century hat, with its pretty ribbon and floral decorations, is still worn with the afternoon muslin, but the elegantes will chiefly take on their travels for restaurant dining the high crowned picture hat of bold lines, with its long sweeping ostrich plume or a couple of beautiful flowers.

Seasonable Fashion Gossip

A SMART LINEN GOWN, (Showing Waistcoat and Revers Finished with Buttons and Lace.)

MANY of the new tailor-made coats boast short basques, while the severe, three-quarter directoire coat has been worn in Paris for some time. This mode will be revived in the autumn, but I think in the hot weather at Cowes we should remain faithful to the short coat if possible. Always smart is the coat with the basque coming a little bit longer in the front than behind, and the Eton or bolero never seems to go out of fashion. It is young-looking, becoming to the slight woman, useful and smart.

A delightful, fine cream serge costume showed a bolero thickly braided with flat silk braid, and finished with tiny silk buttons. The skirt was made with a braided panel all down the front and was also decorated with buttons; the braiding appeared again on the hips, and five enormous, flat tucks were noticeable at the hem. I much like these tucks on frocks of thick fabric.

An attractive gray canvas had three big flat tucks at intervals round the skirt, with some fancy black and gold braid at the top of each. The bolero coat was held in at the waist by a deep black and gold braided band, and showed a daintily braided waistcoat with an inner vest of tucked muslin and Valenciennes lace. This was worn with a three-cornered hat of white felt, trimmed with black braid and gold cords, and a single waving Paradise plume.

Buttons of a costly order form a very charming trimming on an otherwise plain frock. The neatest tailor-built blue serge gown (which has just come from Vienna and will be worn by a woman of distinction at some of the nautical entertainments), is trimmed with black braid and ornamented with tiny sapphire buttons set in gun metal.

I have seen quite smart brown holland and dark blue and white drills, made up with a real, old-fashioned sailor blouse, and worn over a pretty white muslin front or shirt. The skirts just clear the ground all round. Some are trimmed with coarse lace or a border of oriental embroidery, others have only strappings of the material, and I think the latter are the most effective. The neat suede or kid band is an appropriate finish to a gown of this description.

AMERICAN RICE IN CUBA.

Demand Steadily Increasing and a Monopoly of the Market Assured.

The introduction of American rice into the Cuban trade has had an auspicious beginning, and the salesmen who are introducing it confidently predict that within a year American rice will supply half the Cuban demand for this staple article of food and within two years will have practically a monopoly of the market. There are many logical reasons why this should be so, among the most potent of which are the nearness of the American rice fields to the Cuban market, the various lines of transportation between gulf ports and Cuba, the existence of reciprocal trade relations between the two countries, and an earnest desire on the part of the Cuban merchants to buy food products of the United States.

Perhaps in no country in the world does rice enter into the daily consumption of food to a greater extent than in Cuba. Here all classes consume it. Indeed, among the peasantry, or country people, where wheat bread is scarcely used at all, rice is veritably the "staff of life." It is eaten at every meal, and no one knows better than the Cuban housewife its varied and acceptable uses.

It has long been the custom with the provision houses of Cuba to purchase their rice in Hamburg and Liverpool, but they are now showing a disposition to buy nearer home, especially in view of the fact that the cultivation of rice is rapidly becoming one of the leading industries in certain of the gulf states, and in view of the further consideration that the Cuban consumer, as he becomes acquainted with the superior quality of American rice, prefers it to the rice of India, China or Japan. In the comparatively small sales thus far made of American rice in Cuba, it has given universal satisfaction, the people claiming that it possesses a richer flavor and greater nutriment than the eastern rice.

If the rice growers of South Carolina, Louisiana and Texas will make a determined effort now to capture the Cuban trade, they should, with proximity to the market and a preferential tariff in their favor, have little difficulty in winning against European competition. The time is propitious.

GRAIN CROPS IN EUROPE.

Recent Reports Are to the Effect That General Conditions Are Favorable.

The European grain markets are at present chiefly ruled by news regarding the condition of the crops. The local press, however, notes as a curious fact that the European markets are influenced by American news to a much smaller degree than heretofore. This, they claim, is due to the fact that the European markets do not rely for their supplies mainly on the American receipts.

They claim that during a recent week, for instance, the imports of wheat from Argentina amounted to 116,300 tons; from Russia 6,300 tons; while the imports from the United States amounted to only 39,000 tons, which is less than the combined imports from Australia and India, amounting to 55,000 tons. They argue that the quantities afloat from Argentina, Australia and India appear sufficient to supply the further import demands of the European markets, and that consequently the late rises in New York for early delivery, which they attribute to manipulations in Chicago, will have no influence on the European markets.

As regards the state of the growing crops in Europe, the accounts of the condition of the wheat crop in Austria-Hungary are of a favorable nature, which applies to both the summer and winter crops. In a few instances complaints were received from Bohemia about the undue amount of rain; while in Hungary, in some districts, more moisture is needed. These complaints, however, do not amount anywhere to any serious apprehensions respecting the condition of the crops.

As regards the rye crops, the reports are less favorable. Almost from all quarters complaints are loud respecting the present state of the crops. It is claimed, however, that the damage is not of such a nature that it might not be remedied by subsequent favorable weather.

The reports from Germany, France and England are also said to be satisfactory. In Russia the crop reports are quite generally favorable, especially in the southern districts, where the showery weather of the last weeks proved beneficial for the winter crop and facilitated operations in the fields for the summer crops.

A Continual Strain.

Many men and women are constantly subjected to what they commonly term "a continual strain" because of some financial or family trouble. It wears and distresses them both mentally and physically, affecting their nerves badly and bringing on liver and kidney ailments, with the attendant evils of constipation, loss of appetite, sleeplessness, low vitality and despondency. They cannot, as a rule, get rid of this "continual strain," but they can remedy its health destroying effects by taking frequent doses of Green's August Flower. It tones up the liver, stimulates the kidneys, insures healthy bodily functions, gives vim and spirit to one's whole being, and eventually dispels the physical or mental distress caused by that "continual strain." Trial bottle of August Flower, 25c; regular size, 75c. At all druggists.—W. T. Brooks.

Healthy Mothers.

Mothers should always keep in good bodily health. They owe it to their children. Yet it is no unusual sight to see a mother, with babe in arms, coughing violently and exhibiting all the symptoms of a consumptive tendency. And why should this dangerous condition exist, dangerous alike to mother and child, when Dr. Roschke's German Syrup would put a stop to it at once? No mother should be without this old and tried remedy in the house—for its timely use will promptly cure any lung, throat or bronchial trouble in herself or her children. The worst cough or cold can be speedily cured by German Syrup; so can hoarseness and congestion of the bronchial tubes. It makes expectoration easy, and gives instant relief and refreshing rest to the cough-racked consumptive. New trial bottles, 25c; large size 75c. At all druggists.—W. T. Brooks.

Nothing Doing.

The Court House controversy, as we go to press, remains unsettled. Charles F. Wood, chief representative of the Bond Company, is here and has employed Breckinridge & Shelby as his legal representatives. Messrs. Crawford and Gibson's interest are being looked after by E. M. Dickson and an attorney from Logansport, Ind., while the county has employed McMillan & Talbot to assist County Attorney Denis Dundon.

Wednesday evening at 5 o'clock the following notice was served on Mr. Charles F. Wood, chief representative of the Bond Company, by Deputy Sheriff Winsor Letton:

PARIS, KY., Aug. 17, 1904.

To the United States Fidelity and Guarantee Co., Baltimore, Maryland:

You are again notified that the contract of Gibson & Crawford to construct the Bourbon County, Kentucky, Court House, having been cancelled and Gibson & Crawford having been enjoined from doing further work thereon and from entering upon the premises to work and from interfering with the work thereon you, as surety on their bond are required if you elect to carry out their contract and construct the Court House to begin the work promptly and prosecute it with diligence in as much as a great deal remains to be done, and the weather is now suitable for work and the building should be finished before it is exposed to the deteriorating effects of rain and the freezing and thawing of the approaching winter.

J. WILL THOMAS, Chairman of Building Committee of Bourbon County Court House.

Bourbon County, by H. C. Smith, County Judge of Bourbon County.

Yesterday the Building Committee was in session and the Bond Company submitted a proposition looking to the early completion of the building. The matter was taken under consideration as the county desires to have some estimates made relative to the amount necessary to complete the work, and within the next few days some agreement will be reached whereby the work will be prosecuted with vigor and the house completed before the advent of bad weather.

LOST.—A small gold chain on Main Street, yesterday. Finder please return to this office and receive reward.

City Schools Open August 29.

The Paris City Schools will open on Monday, August 29th. The prospects for the school this year are very bright, as it is estimated that the attendance will surpass that of any previous year.

The new heating apparatus has been completed, the cistern repaired and put in sanitary condition, the building cleaned from top to bottom, and everything attended to that will be needed for the comfort of the children and teachers for the coming year.

New Text books will be used according to the new school book law, which has been made since the last term. This law is a good thing for the children, and also for the parents, as the same books will be used all over the State, and used every year—no changing of text books every six months, according to the ideas of certain teachers. This change will be permanent, as it is a law passed by the last Legislature.

The compulsory attendance for children from the ages of 7 to 14 will be rigidly enforced the coming year. Constable Jos. Williams having been appointed Truant Officer is a guarantee that there will be few children who will play "hookey" without being caught.

TIRE SETTING.—Our tire setting machine can set tires cold as well as hot. If you want a cheap job we can do it. July 12th E. J. McKIMMEY & SON.

Mrs. Thos. Evans Dies Suddenly.

Mrs. Mattie Evans, aged 67, wife of Mr. Tom Evans, one of Bourbon's most worthy and respected citizens, died suddenly at her home near North Middletown about 7 o'clock Wednesday morning. She was assisting in preparing the morning meal, and complaining of feeling ill, she died before medical aid could reach her. Besides her husband, she leaves one son and three daughters—Charles Evans, Mrs. Wm. Jones, Mrs. A. G. Jones and Mrs. Prewitt, of Winchester.

She was a consistent member of the Christian Church. Her sudden death came as a shock to the entire community. The funeral services were held at the North Middletown Christian Church yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock, where a large concourse of sorrowing friends paid respects to her memory. The services were conducted by Elders Dick and Reynolds.

The new fixtures will be of the most modern style, made of hardwood, marble, brass, bronze and beveled glass. A new steel ceiling and tiling floor will also be put in. The entire front of the room will be torn out and replaced with stone and plate glass. The entrance will be changed to the corner.

New Manager.

Mr. Clarence Humbert has succeeded Mr. Sylvester Cecil as manager of the Bourbon Home Telephone Co., Mr. Cecil having resigned. Mr. Cecil has made many friends in Paris who will regret to see him leave our city.

Mr. Humbert was superintendent of the Buckeye Construction Co., while the plant was being put in here and has just completed an up-to-date telephone exchange in Carlisle. Mr. Humbert is a capable gentleman and will make the company an excellent manager, being thoroughly competent to attend to any branch of the business. With a manager like this gentleman it is needless to say that we shall in the future have a telephone system that will give satisfaction to the most critical.

IS IT YOU?

Some one's selfish, some one's lazy;
Is it you?
Some one's sense of right is hazy;
Is it you?
Some one lives a life of ease,
Doing largely as he please—
Drifting idly with the breeze;
Is it you?
Some one hopes success will find him.
Is it you?
Some one proudly looks behind him—
Is it you?
Some one full of good advice
Seems to think it rather nice
In a has-been's paradise—
Is it you?
Some one trusts to luck for winning;
Is it you?
Some one craves a new beginning;
Is it you?
Some one says: "I never had Such a chance as Jones' lad."
Some one's likewise quite a cad—
Is it you?
Some one's terribly mistaken;
Is it you?
Some one sadly will awaken;
Is it you?
Some one's working on the plan
That a masterful "I can"
Doesn't help to make the Man—
Is it you?
Some one yet may "make a killing";
And it's you.
Some one needs but to be willing,
And it's you.
Some one better set his jaw,
Cease to be a man of straw,
Get some sand into his craw—
And it's you.

WHEN THE TIDE CAME IN

By EDGAR WELTON COOLEY

(Copyright, 1904, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

WEARY, but radiant with happiness, Clark Morgan walked rapidly up the street from the modest station building through the gathering twilight. A combination of fortunate circumstances had enabled him to conclude his business affairs 24 hours sooner than he had anticipated, and he had thus been enabled to reach home on the evening of his wife's birthday.

This fact added elasticity to his steps and buoyancy to his spirits. He had a little present for Gertrude tucked away in his grip, an inexpensive little bauble, but one she had long desired.

He planned to slip in upon her and take her by surprise. Then he would present her with the gift, and they would sit under the maples and watch the darkness deepen, see the fireflies arise from the grass and hear the booming of the beetles through the gloom, and the splashing of the sea upon the rocks.

Quietly he slipped through the gate, when he reached the summer cottage, crept silently across the lawn, and entered noiselessly at the side door.

The living room was vacant; the last rays of the sun struggled through the lace curtains and kissed the ceiling. Shadows hovered in the corners; a deep silence reigned everywhere—a silence perfumed by a vase of lilies-of-the-valley on the table.

For a moment he paused in the center of the room, then a slight rustle from the parlor reached him, and he smiled.

Softly he stepped to the portieres and, drawing one of them slightly, peeped through the narrow opening.

Gertrude stood near the piano. At her side was James Bernard. His arm encircled her waist; her arms were around his neck; her head was slightly bowed; his lips were pressed against her forehead.

James Bernard was Clark Morgan's closest personal friend. The latch-string at the Morgan home had always been out to him.

Silently the portiere slipped from the husband's fingers and blotted the picture from his sight. For a moment he stood immovable, and a thousand thoughts passed through his mind.

Then he turned his head and glanced out the window, gazing for miles across the restless sea. On the far horizon rested a jagged rock—Fisher-man's Point—like a grim monument to his dead happiness. From the sea a deep gloom swept toward him. He stretched forth his arms as though to welcome it. If it were only everlasting oblivion!

Again his glance rested upon Fisher-man's Point. It was sinking from sight; the tide was rising. It would go down into the sea and the waves would sweep over it, like the waves were sweeping over him. But on the morrow it would rise again, even as he would when the great sorrow had passed.

Thinking thus, he crept out again into the shadows, and when he returned it was with a merry whistle and a radiant smile. His wife met him at the door and he kissed her and extended his hand to Bernard.

"How nice that we can all spend the evening together," he said; "it will be a pleasant ending to Gertrude's birthday."

He smiled at his wife, but her eyes dropped before his, and he thought he saw the suspicion of a blush upon her cheek.

"Yes," replied Bernard, carelessly. "I dropped in to congratulate Mrs. Morgan upon her anniversary."

"A kindness we both very much appreciate, I am sure," Morgan answered, "and, my dear," he added, smiling pleasantly at his wife, "I have planned a little diversion for to-morrow. They say angling is fine off Fisher-man's Point, and I suggest we three—now don't say you can't spare the time, Bernard, old chap—sail out there to-morrow afternoon, taking along some luncheon and enjoy the sport until dusk."

"How delightful!" exclaimed Mrs.

Morgan, jubilantly. "Of course you will go, Mr. Bernard?"
"Of course," insisted Mr. Morgan.
"Of course," insisted Mr. Bernard, laughing.

The sunshine fell brilliantly upon the sea, kissing the waves that lashed the base of Fisher-man's Point into a spray of diamonds. Above, the sky arched, a blue canopy. The air, tempered by the salt moisture, was cool and pleasant.

The three, in Clark Morgan's sail boat, anchored just off the Point, fished and laughed, and were jolly. And Morgan was the merriest of them all. The others were kept laughing at his witticisms.

He had his kodak with him, and he took several shots at the rocks, the gently swelling waves, and at the only boat that passed during the afternoon.

When the tide began rising, Morgan was the first to note the slowly upward creeping of the sea upon the rocks. A smile trembled upon his lips and a strange fire burned in his eyes.

From the locker of the boat he produced a bottle of champagne, and, pouring out three glasses, handed one each to his wife and Bernard. Then, raising his own, he said:

"Here is to Love that is true,
Here is to Honor, that's real.
Love and Honor and you—
A trinity stamped with God's seal."

He touched the glass to his lips, but the others, astounded, hesitated.

"Why don't you drink?" he cried; "why don't you drink to love and honor—the twin stars in life's diadem? No other virtues are so blessed or so rare as love and honor!"

The words were spoken as though in pleasantry. Not the suspicion of a sneer accompanied them; not a spark from the fire that was consuming his soul, was visible.

So, together, they drank the toast, and when they had finished, Morgan broke his glass upon the boat's rail and watched the pieces sink into the sea.

The tide was now rising rapidly. Already the lowest crevices on Fisher-man's Point were under water.

Suddenly Clark Morgan glanced at his wife. "My dear," he said, "I was thinking what a beautiful picture I could take if you and Bernard would pose for me a moment on the rocks—you, kneeling in your white gown, my dear, and Bernard, in his robe, holding this crucifix in his hand, with the waves all but kissing your feet, and the broad sea in the background."

As he spoke, he unrolled a package he had taken, with the champagne, from the locker, and now held up a priest's robe and beads.

"Bravo!" cried Bernard, enthusiastically. "You are a thorough artist, Clark; it is a splendid conception."

"See, my dear," he said, "the tide is nearly to where we stand. Now kneel right here, your hands clasped so, and your eyes turned upward, so; that's right. Now, Bernard, hold the crucifix, there, that's right; ah, that's perfect. Throw your head back a little more. Gertrude, so your hair will fall over your shoulders more, there. Now, I'll sail away from the rock a few rods, so as to get a better focus. Ah, this is going to be one of the triumphs of my life."

Talking cheerily as he clambered over the rocks, Morgan descended to the boat and hoisted sail. Twenty yards from the Point he put the helm about, and the boat turned its bow gracefully towards the far away shore.

A light breeze was blowing landward, and before this he slowly sailed, making no pretense to check his course.

After 15 minutes or so, he glanced back at the man and woman on the rocks. His wife had risen to her feet and stood with her face towards him. He could see the startled look in her eyes.

He waved his hand at them. "Behold!" he cried, "purity and godliness upon a granite pinnacle!"

A half hour passed before he again looked back. Gertrude and Bernard were standing upon the topmost point of rock, and the tide was nearly at their feet. With the aid of his glass he could see the look of horror on the woman's face and the desperation in the eyes of the man.

His wife's hair was shining wet with the dashing spray, and tears glistened upon her cheeks.

Then the twilight deepened, deepened, and finally Fisher-man's Point was but an indistinct dot upon the horizon, with miles of foaming sea on every side.

But, in his drifting boat, Clark Morgan sat and watched Fisher-man's Point through his glass. He saw the man clasp the woman in his arms; he saw the woman put her hands to her eyes as though to shut out the sight of death creeping nearer, nearer; he watched the tide rise to their knees, to their waists, to their shoulders—then the darkness became so heavy he could no longer distinguish them from the spray.

From the locker he took another bottle of champagne. Filling a glass with the sparkling liquid, he extended it toward the dense gloom that enshrouded the Point and cried:

"Here is to Love that is true;
Here is to Honor that's real.
Love and Honor and you—
A trinity—"

During the night a sail boat drifted upon the mud banks, where fishermen found it. In the bottom was the dead body of a man.

"Heart disease," pronounced the learned coroner, solemnly.

In a court case it was claimed that a man tried to fool his wife by pretending that he was intoxicated. That is a new one. Many men, however, have tried to fool their wives by pretending that they were strictly sober.

OUR PUBLIC PARKS

MANY NEW DEPARTURES TO
BE FOUND IN THEM.Present Magnificent Urban Pleasure
Grounds Are the Product of About
Forty Years of Effort—
Some Examples.

In 14 new small parks on the South side, in Chicago, it is proposed to build "club houses for the masses," social centers for the congested districts. This is a decided departure in the way of municipal effort, a city considering its duty done in providing summer recreation places. But, not so very long ago, parks themselves were new departures.

It may be of interest to learn that when public parks were first projected there was much opposition to them; one argument employed against them, that they would increase taxation; another, that they would become the resort of the vicious and that respectable people would have to hold aloof from them.

A NOOK IN UNION SQUARE, NEW YORK.

It is about 40 years America has displayed interest in the development of city parks, and this period is marked by much splendid work in the extension and beautifying of urban pleasure grounds. Widely-known Central park has cost New York $15,000,000, to-day has a real estate value of $200,000,000, but its value to the people is infinite. Some figures may indicate the scope of the benefit: It contains 400,000 acres of wooded grounds, has nine miles of carriage way, over 28 miles of walk, and bridle paths of five miles' length; there are 30 buildings on the grounds, and seats for 10,000 people. The whole, indeed, a boon to the city-dweller, who could better dispense with library and museum.

Central park established a noble precedent, and cities all over the country were inspired to follow after the good work here begun. To-day, a stranger in a large town counts as one of his first pleasures a visit to the park which has established a reputation; for he knows each city is now judged by its parks as well as by its numbers. Everyone has heard of certain of the parks of Greater New York—Central, Prospect, Morningside and Riverside, though not of the whole number constituting New York's ten square miles (6,766 acres) of park area. Chicago has a very fine system of parks and boulevards; the country is familiar with beautiful Lincoln, Washington and Jackson parks. Fairmount park is the pride of Philadelphia, a pleasure of 3,300 acres, and 21 small parks invite to outdoor loitering in the City of Brotherly Love. Over on the Pacific, San Francisco glories in Golden Gate park, and rejoices in numerous small parks. Belle Isle, the island park of Detroit, is a beautiful spot. Baltimore has so many parks she cannot look after them all; has nine large ones and 20 small. St. Louis' Forest park is very much to the fore at present, and the Shaw Gardens of that city are famous. The parks of Cincinnati, Cleveland, Buffalo, Minneapolis and St. Paul are justly famed, and Boston stands at the head of all our cities in the matter of park development, her city and suburban parks being illustrious examples of city beautifying.

City life, with its artificial conditions, certainly would be unbearable were it not for the breathing spaces here and there in the desert of buildings, were it not for the flower and woodland beauty so carefully planned and cherished by our city fathers; who to-day, influenced by the cry for hygienic outdoor life for both children and grown-ups, feel it incumbent to set apart park and boulevard where verdure, color and perfume may minister to the universal craving for natural beauty.

HOT BUT HARMLESS FIGHT

Clean Boy and Dirty Boy Do Terrible
Things to Each Other by Signs.

Among the passengers on a Ninth avenue elevated train going up town the other day was a boy of 15 in jumpers, with very grimy face and hands. He looked like a plumber's apprentice or a small beginner in a machine shop, relates the New York Sun.

Opposite to him sat another boy of about the same age and build, but very spick and span, with a strictly washed face and a neat business suit. He had a thick package of papers, and looked as if he were starting in life as an office boy.

The two seemed to pay no attention to each other until the Twenty-third street station was reached and there the grimy boy got off. He promptly stepped back along the platform until he stood behind the other boy, who was sitting with his back to the platform. Then he tapped on the glass—it had been raining and the car windows were closed.

The clean boy looked around, whereupon the dirty one squared off in prize ring style, and beckoned to the clean boy to come out and settle it then and there, and went through a series of feints, parries and punches, plainly designed to show what a sad thing it would be for the clean boy if he accepted the invitation.

The clean boy grinned, and, stretching his coat sleeve over his arm, "put up a muscle," shaking his fist as if it were a battering ram, at his adversary.

The dirty boy danced around the platform, hitting right and left and shaking his head as if taking punishment, and giving it back to the atmosphere with compound interest.

The clean boy arched his left arm as if he had his opponent's neck in chancery, and swung his right with damaging speed and vigor upon the spot where the other boy's face wasn't.

Then the train started. The terrific conflict lasted about 30 seconds. As long as the two boys could see each other they made faces, and gave plastic demonstrations of their hatred and contempt for each other.

The clean boy relapsed into his seat with a sigh of refreshment. The struggle had done him no end of good. He grinned good humoredly at a sour-looking woman in the cross-seat, who looked as if she would have liked to own him just for five minutes.

HIGH-POWER MICROSCOPES.

One That Enlarges the Eye of a House-
Fly to an Area of 312
Square Feet.

All who use the microscope are aware that the limit of its magnifying powers is soon reached. Beyond a certain point the image becomes indistinct, large but not clear, and the imperfections of the instrument are magnified as well as the object. Prof. Dolbear has observed that "the powers of the microscope have not been doubled within the last 50 years, though more time and ingenuity have been given to the problem of improving it than will ever be given in the same interval again." It is dangerous, however, to prophesy, says the London Telegraph. One of the exhibits at the Royal society's conversation seemed to mark a very distinct advance. Mr. J. W. Gordon showed a high-power microscope which had in the view-field of the ordinary instrument a rotating glass screen, and this, viewed through a second microscope, gave a further magnification of 100 diameters. The ground-glass screen, by expending the transmitted light wave, causes it completely to fill the aperture of the second microscope, so that the usual imperfections of excessive magnification disappear. A diatom was magnified 10,000 diameters, and its structure was clear and well defined. With the same magnification the eye of a house-fly would seem to cover an area of 312 square feet.

THE POWER OF MIMICRY.

As Presented in Public Oftentimes
It Amounts Merely to a Species of Boring.

The power of mimicry deserts the average man at the same time, and for the same reason, as the power of parody, says the London Saturday Review. Before he is 20 the average youth can catch, more or less recognizably, the tone of voice and the tone of mind of his friends. Later his own mind acquires so distinct a tone, and he becomes so accustomed to his own voice, that his efforts at mimicry (if he make any) are dire failures. Occasionally, however, a man retains the knack even in his prime and even though he has a distinct individuality. In him, and in him alone, we behold the complete mimic. The mimicry is a form of criticism, and a distinct individuality—a point of view—as is needful in the mimic as in the critic. Mimicry is a mechanical reproduction of voice and gesture and facial play is a mere waste of time and trial of patience. Yet that is the kind of mimicry that is nearly always offered us. A man comes upon the platform and reproduces verbatim some scene of a recent play exactly as it was enacted by this or that mimic. If he were a parrot the effect would be amusing, for it is odd to hear a bird uttering human inflections. But he happens to be a man, and so we are merely bored.

A Real Genius.

Jigs-mith—That fellow Piker is certainly a clever, ingenious chap, isn't he? Browning—Why, I never heard of his doing anything remarkable. "That's just it. He manages in some way to get along without doing anything."—St. Louis Republic.

The Unhappy History of Poland Under Russian Rule

From a Once Great European Nation It Has Dwindled to but a Province of the Czar.

FINNS and Poles alike have been difficult to assimilate by devouring Russia, the civilization of the Finns, the spirit of the Poles, not taking kindly to the tyranny of conquering Russia.

Civil strife in Poland led to the breaking up of the once large Polish territory, to the slices lopped off by Austria, Russia and Prussia, to the final entire absorption of the country by the Russians. And to-day two opposing parties, the nationalists and the socialists, seem to find it very difficult to agree on any national policy—save the one of continued bitter hostility to the Russian government.

That a nation which had existed for 800 years, been counted for that period presence in the towns of Poland of so many German residents, and by the folly of having allowed the Teutonic knights to settle in Polish territory—whence sprang the great kingdom of Prussia. Russia appeared as a formidable and decided antagonist later than the Germans, during the reign of Ivan the Terrible, who presented himself a candidate for the new place of electoral monarch. A strong Polish prince, Stephen Batory, proved a match, however, for Czar Ivan; not only defended Poland, but also ceaselessly labored to bring about the dismemberment of Russia. This prince it was that first organized the Cossacks, a name closely linked with Russian and Polish history. A Pole was really crowned czar of Moscow, but soon the Poles were forced to give up their claims to Russian territory; a territory between which and that of Poland there was ever such a dangerously indefinite line, making fruitful cause for the "domestic feud of the two Slavonic nations." In 1772 Russia entered into agreement with Prussia and Austria to begin the dismemberment of Poland, and the Russians at once began hostile invasion of the country. Steadily they pushed on their boundary, by 1793 having made much advance.

The Polish people, as is well known, did not submit tamely to the stretching of the paw of the Great Bear nor to the claims of greedy Prussia. A national spirit showed itself now, a patriotism of decided strength. Thaddeus Kosciusko, a general of recognized merit, led his countrymen against the Prussians in possession of Warsaw, and forced the invaders to come to terms. But a Russian general hastened to the capital, the brave leader was taken prisoner and his cause lost. He was carried to St. Petersburg, and there held captive until the death of Catherine of Russia, a sovereign who did her share to-of time a considerable European power, should utterly disappear, have no longer place among the sovereign powers, would arouse even in the most indifferent some degree of wonder. It is not easy to attempt in a limited space to give explanation of the steps leading to the fall of Poland, but a review of some of the causes, a glance at some important events in the long period of its life, may suggest the outline of the story. The history of Poland as a nation is a story of great heroes and of interested plotters, of noble arrayed against peasant, of foreign interference and foreign spoliation, of a disrupted, distressed land, albeit a fairly rich, fertile one. Back in the middle of the seventeenth century the territory extended from the Baltic to the Carpathian mountains, had an area of almost 300,000 square miles, about seven times its extent to-day. It was a diversified land of good soil, fine timber, wide pasturage, and of no small mineral wealth, and its people, especially along in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, enjoyed a high measure of prosperity. The nobles lived in luxury, music and learning were made much of, the state was a dominant power.

About the middle of the sixteenth century the government took a step leading to disaffection among a large body of the people, inaugurated a change from the hereditary monarchy to an elective crown. To settle the strife arising from this radical move, the aggrieved party would call upon an outside nation to assist in the ensuing war, and the ally seldom failed to demand a share of the spoils when victory came the right way.

Another weakness leading to Poland's downfall was the lack of a middle class, "that bulwark of a nation;" ruling noble and peasant serf forming the two Polish classes, the trading Jews standing apart by themselves. Little by little the noble encroached upon the peasants' few rights, and pitiable indeed became the condition of this large body of people. Naturally there was not much in their situation to foster patriotism for their native land. The lord had power of life and death over his serf; if a master killed a serf, a fine freed him. Each noble was master in his own territory, and in time became wholly self-absorbed, he, too, lacking in national patriotism. The clergy, also, had no small part in Poland's downfall, being intolerant, given to persecution of other sects; dealing summarily with the Greek Catholics and adding fuel to the enmity of Russia, persecuting the Protestants, and arousing the hatred of Germany, and want of a natural frontier made possible, and invited, encroachments of conquerors from without.

Poland and Germany were at odds from the first, in the early days of Polish dependency on Germany; and the hostility was furthered by the wards the enslaving of the Polish nation.

(Kosciusko is a son of Poland whose name ever will be a popular one in America. When we were at war with England the Polish patriot came to our assistance, entering our army as a volunteer, and displaying distinguished bravery at the battles of Saratoga and Yorktown. Gen. Washington made him a brigadier, and he was appointed governor of West Point. As brigadier general he served his own country nobly, but Russian influence forced him into exile. On his return to Poland, he zealously and untiringly labored to free his nation from the threatening ruin, but was forced to give up all hope.)

A figure pitifully contrasting with the patriot, Kosciusko, is that of Stanislaus, the puppet king in whose reign ended Poland's career as an independent nation. He was a cultured, accomplished man, but lacking in force and spirit. The proud Polish nobility, however, did not submit tamely to the Russian rule, and in 1830 insurrection broke out, the plot including the seizure of the Russian grand duke, Constantine, in the palace at Warsaw. Plots in succeeding years resulting in failure, these movements brought upon Poland sad disaster, added oppression.

Poland's modern record is, in brief, as follows: A separate constitution, 1815-'30, and a separate government, 1830-'64; in the latter year loss of administrative independence, and four years afterward it becomes an integral part of Russia. The Russians vigorously endeavored to stamp out the Polish spirit of restlessness under restraint, the use of the Polish language was prohibited and the trial by jury done away with. Two acts on Russia's part especially obnoxious to the Poles, with their old civilization, their long history as an independent nation.

The territory comprising the region at present bearing the name of Poland is an area of 49,159 square miles and has a population of 10,000,000. Poles form the bulk of the inhabitants; amongst the other races there are many Germans, Jews and Lithuanians. As to religion, the Poles are chiefly Roman Catholics; next to these in number come members of the Greek Catholic church, and the Germans generally are of the Protestant faith.

SAVED FOR THE FISH TRADE

He Had Too Much Intellect to Be "Hove Away" on a Doctor.

The fish-man drove into the yard a few days after the new summer residents had taken possession of their home, and seeing an open door he stepped in and confronted the mistress of the house, relates Youth's Companion.

"Gettin' settled, I s'pose," he said, agreeably, allowing his gaze to wander from two half-unpacked trunks to a table loaded with miscellaneous articles. "Well, take your time, take your time; there's plenty of it up here! I understand your husband's a doctor, ma'am?"

"Yes, he is," said the summer resident, who in spite of warnings from city neighbors that she had better display no haughtiness of spirit under questioning, was unable to put much cordiality into her tone.

"Well, now, I come near bein' a doctor," said the fish-man, still with a wandering gaze. "My folks wanted I should be one, all exceptin' of an aunt that had money, and was looked to to help me out financially if I took up with a profession. She spent one summer here, and she made a reg'lar study of my character an' parts, and at the end of the season she up an' told my folks that 'twouldn't do, I must go into business."

"That boy has got too much intellect to be hove away on a doctor," she said; those were her very words. Now how would you like a couple of good mack'ral all slit up an' ready for the br'er?"

Voice from Arkansas.

Cleveland, Ark., August 15 (Special).—Nearly every newspaper tells of some wonderful cure of some form of Kidney Disease by the Great American Remedy, Dodd's Kidney Pills, and this part of Arkansas is not without its share of evidence that no case is too deeply rooted for Dodd's Kidney Pills to cure.

Mr. A. E. Carille, well known and highly respected here, tells of his cure after nearly a quarter of a century's suffering. Mr. Carille says:

"I want to let the public know what I think of Dodd's Kidney Pills. I think they are the best remedy for sick kidneys ever made."

"I had Kidney Trouble for 23 years and never found anything that did me so much good as Dodd's Kidney Pills. I recommend them to all sufferers."

There is no uncertain sound about Mr. Carille's statement. He knows that Dodd's Kidney Pills rescued him from a life of suffering and he wants the public to know it. Dodd's Kidney Pills cure all the evils from Backache to Bright's Disease.

Mrs. Hughson, of Chicago, whose letter follows, is another woman in high position who owes her health to the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I suffered for several years with general weakness and bearing-down pains, caused by womb trouble. My appetite was fitful, and I would lie awake for hours, and could not sleep, until I seemed more weary in the morning than when I retired. After reading one of your advertisements I decided to try the merits of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am so glad I did. No one can describe the good it did me. I took three bottles faithfully, and besides building up my general health, it drove all disease and poison out of my body, and made me feel as spry and active as a young girl. Mrs. Pinkham's medicines are certainly all they are claimed to be."—Mrs. M. E. HUGHSON, 347 East Ohio St., Chicago, Ill.

Mrs. Pinkham Tells How Ordinary Tasks Produce Displacements.

Apparently trifling incidents in woman's daily life frequently produce displacements of the womb. A slip on the stairs, lifting during menstruation, standing at a counter, running a sewing machine, or attending to the most ordinary tasks may result in displacement, and a train of serious evils is started.

The first indication of such trouble should be the signal for quick action. Don't let the condition become chronic through neglect or a mistaken idea that you can overcome it by exercise or leaving it alone.

More than a million women have regained health by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If the slightest trouble appears which you do not understand write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., for her advice, and a few timely words from her will show you the right thing to do. This advice costs you nothing, but it may mean life or happiness or both.

Mrs. Lelah Stowell, 177 Wellington St., Kingston, Ont., writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—You are indeed a godsend to women, and if they all knew what you could do for them, there would be no need of their dragging out miserable lives in agony."

"I suffered for years with bearing-down pains, womb trouble, nervousness, and excruciating headache, but a few bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made life look new and promising to me. I am light and happy, and I do not know what sickness is, and I now enjoy the best of health."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound can always be relied upon to restore health to women who thus suffer. It is a sovereign cure for the worst forms of female complaints,—that bearing-down feeling, weak back, falling and displacement of the womb, inflammation of the ovaries, and all troubles of the uterus or womb. It dissolves and expels tumors from the uterus in the early stage of development, and checks any tendency to cancerous humors. It subdues excitability, nervous prostration, and tones up the entire female system. Its record of cures is the greatest in the world, and should be relied upon with confidence.

$5000 FORFEIT if we cannot forthwith produce the original letters and signatures of above testimonials, which will prove their absolute truthfulness.

INITIAL CLERK-CARRIER EXAMINATION.

PARIS, KY., SEPT. 17, 1904.

The United States Civil Service Commission announces that on the date and at the place named above an examination will be held for the positions of clerk and carrier in the Postoffice Service.

From the eligibles resulting from this examination it is expected that the Postmaster General will select the carriers and substitute carriers who are to be appointed prior to the establishment of free delivery in this city. Selections from these eligibles may also be made for appointments to the positions of clerk and carrier after the establishment of free delivery.

This examination offers an opportunity to bright, energetic young persons to enter an interesting field of Government employment where the salaries compare most favorably with those paid in private employment.

The salary of letter carriers in all cities which contain a population of 75,000 or more is arranged in three classes: First class, $1,000 per annum; second class, $800 per annum; and third class, $600 per annum. In cities containing less than 75,000 population there are two classes: Second class, $850 per annum, and third class, $600 per annum. Appointments of letter carriers are made to the class having the minimum rate of pay and promotions from the lower grades are made to the next higher grade at the expiration of one year's service, on certificate of the postmaster to the efficiency and faithfulness of the employee during the preceding year. A substitute letter carrier receives a compensation of $1 per annum and the pro rata compensation of the carrier whose route he may be required to serve. A vacancy in the regular force of carriers must be filled by the promotion of the senior substitute. A substitute clerk is paid a rate of compensation not exceeding the compensation of the absent clerk or employee whose place he takes. The salaries of clerks at the postoffices vary according to the class of work to be performed and the size of the office, but range from $400 to $1,000 in the smaller offices to as high as $1,700 per annum in the larger offices. All original appointments of clerks are made at the minimum salaries.

The examination will consist of the subjects mentioned below, weighted as indicated.

Fine Bourbon County STOCK FARM FOR SALE.

As Administrator of G. G. White, deceased, and agent for his heirs, I will, at 11:30 o'clock a. m., on offer at public sale, in front of the Court-House, in Paris, Ky., the fine Bourbon County farm known as the Gilt Edge Stock Farm, the property of the late G. G. White, situated on the Paris & North Middletown Turnpike, near the City limits of Paris, and containing 547 1/2 acres of land.

This is a No. 1 Bourbon County farm. It is all under cultivation except about 150 acres of virgin soil, which is heavily set in bluegrass, making splendid grazing and is unexcelled for tobacco. Plenty of stock water in driest season. Has benefit of creek boundary, but no creek included in survey. No part of farm overflows. Creek line furnishes unfailing stock water and saves fencing.

The farm residence is one of the best in Bourbon County, being a large 2 1/2 story brick house, colonial in style, with front veranda supported by massive columns which rise to the eaves of the house. Rooms and halls spacious and well lighted. Cellars, large, light and dry. Interior finish largely in hard wood.

Two first class cisterns at residence, and all necessary outhouses.

Splendid stock barn with large number of box stalls, and good training track. Paddocks with good stallion stables adjoining barn, and an inexhaustible artesian well at the barn door. Everything in fact for a first-class stock farm.

ALSO, A GOOD TWO-STORY FRAME RESIDENCE

The Paris Distillery Company has, for years past paid $300.00 per year for privilege of pumping water from Stoner Creek, and $300.00 per year for depositing offal from cattle pens in the natural basin near the Distillery. The purchaser can probably continue these privileges—either or both—indefinitely, adding $600.00 to annual income from the farm.

This farm is well suited for the large handling of cattle because of proximity of distillery.

I will first offer the farm in two parts and then as a whole, reserving the right to accept or reject any bid.

Division No. 1 contains 271.93 acres, including the brick residence, stock barn, track, and all adjacent improvements, and fronts on the North Middletown pike and extends back to Stoner Creek and is bounded on one side by G. W. Wyatt, and on the other side by Division No. 2. This tract contains the natural basins in which the distillery deposits offal from cattle pens, paying $300.00 annually for the privilege.

Division No. 2 contains 276.70 acres, bounded by the Distillery property on the North, by the Maysville railroad and Stoner Creek on the West, by Stoner Creek on the South, and by Division No. 1 and Stoner Creek on the East. The frame residence is on this tract, and the Distillery Company pays $300.00 per annum for the privilege of pumping water over this tract from Stoner Creek—an income of $300 per year without injury to the land.

The surveyor's field notes and plat of entire farm and of the above two Divisions may be seen at the Citizens Bank in Paris, Ky.

In event of the farm selling in the above two divisions the right to use the passway from Division No. 2 over the land of Mrs. Frank Fithian out to the Maysville pike, opposite the G. G. White Distillery, in East Paris, will be included in conveyance of Division No. 2.

Purchaser has privilege of seeding the coming Fall, and full possession given March 1, 1905.

TERMS.—One third cash on March 1, 1905, when deed is made; one-third March 1, 1906; one-third March 1, 1907—deferred payments to bear 6 per cent. interest from March 1, 1905.

The purchaser will not be required to give security for the deferred payments but will be required to give security for the first payment due March 1, 1905, and his notes without surety for the deferred payments, to secure which a lien will be reserved in the deed.

Purchaser may pay more than one-third of the purchase money if preferred.

For further information call on or address the undersigned in Paris, Ky.
